

Philip and Muriel Berman Center for Jewish Studies

On Being a Jewish Writer

Dara Horn

American Novelist

Scholar of Hebrew and Yiddish Literature

Co-sponsors

Jewish Studies Program, Lafayette College

Hillel Society, Lafayette College

Creative Writing Program, Lehigh University

"Can one find the universal in the particular? In this talk, Dara Horn, American novelist and scholar of Hebrew and Yiddish literature, will discuss the history of Jewish languages, what it means to write stories grounded in the Jewish literary tradition in contemporary America, and how she came to write her most recent novel, about a woman who can't die."

Tuesday, April 24, 2018

7:00 p.m.

Lewis Lab, Room 270

Book signing will follow lecture.

Office of Interdisciplinary Programs: 610-758-3996 | incasip@lehigh.edu